A concentration at Preux for a counter-attack was observed from the air. Transports, ammunition trains and masses of men became mixed up on the roads in that vicinity. When the concentration was sufficiently large and the enemy traffic appeared to be in the greatest state of confusion, the British gunners opened up their weapons and pumped in steel as rapidly as possible. Within a few minutes the ground was strewn with dead men and horses, equipment, wagons, lorries and limbers.

horses, equipment, wagons, forries and limbers.

Reports just received from one section of the front tell of flerce fighting at several places. They particularly mention Pomercuil, where the British were held up for a time by a nurderous fire from a heavy concentration of German machine guns. The place was filled with the spluttering weapons.

The British waited for a time until the advance had progressed north and south of them. Then they swept around the town on both sides. At the rear they found a triangular cleared space, in which the German machine gunners retired to prepared positions. The British went around them and captured Pomercuil wood at the back of the triangle, thus surrounding the enemy.

Stiff Fight Rages.

The stiffest fighting of the American offensive west of the Meuse was under way yesterday, with the line swaying back and forth. In the region of Grand Pre the Americans threw back repeated violent German counter-attacks.

On the northern edge of Grand Pre the Americans captured 52 prisoners, including three efficers. They also took eight enemy machine guns.

With their backs to a great series of woods, the Bols de Bas and the Bots de Bourgeogne included, the Germans are fighting for their lives, Prisoners assert that the woods are literally full of machine guns and guns of heavier caliber, and these prisoners have aspressed the opinion that the Americans can never capture Bourgeogne and the woods northwest.

The american woops fought all Wednesday in the face of machine gun hests extended from Hill 294 to Belledyovuse farm.

North of Campignoulle several light attacks by the Germans were wounded and two were captured. These men came forward calling "kamerad," then opened fire with rifles which had been strapped upon their backs. Light forces of infantry attacked immediately afterward, when the Americans reduced to rush forward in response to the kamerad trick.

Move Guns About.

Along the same part of the front the Germans are using fight rolling machine guns, moving from piace to place, particularly at night, with the object of concealing positions of their heavier guns. The German heavy artillery shelled Sommerance and other towns in that region and as far as the Meuse drenched the woods within the American lines with gas at intervals.

An early morning mist and smoke screen assisted the Americans, who advanced for a distance of about two-thirds of a mile accertain points and gained positions of advantage, including ridges on either side of Grand Fre. During the day the Americans took 200 prisoners and others are now coming in. The Germans are using for the most part machine guns and light artiflery with plenty of gas. The enemy machine gun nests were pounded all day by the American artiflery and by hombing machines, but the Germans apparently had dug in against shells.

In a most spectacular combat over Doulcon which lasted half an hour, four American fighters badly worsted an equal number of Germans, three Fokkers being downed. Capt. Alfred Grant Benton, of Texas, single-handed, fought two Fokkers and shot down in flames over No Man's Land a German two-seater bound for the American lines on observation duty.

Reports from air victories continued to reach the officials until after dark and it is known that at least 12 German machines have been brought down, while confirmation of the destruction of several others is asked.

If You Are One Who Has Quit Indulging in Strong Drink.

Cadomene Tablets Will Help You Over the Rough Period.

Cadomene Tablets are helpful to weak nerves. Weak, faulty nerves often come from strong drink. Sometimes the sys-tem is impoverished by excesses of one kind or another, such as poor diges-tion and faulty nutrition. Overwork, anxiety, and even grief causes abnormal nervous conditions. The strength of body declines. The strength of will power wanes. Nervousness and sleeplessness cause further weakness and loss of vitality. Years of faithful practice taught a great physician that the formula now used to make Cadomene Tablets would surely build up the health of his patients. Now, anyone can take this great medicine if needed, Mr. G. A., Hoover, R. R. No. 1, Read-ing, Pa., writes: "I am taking Cadomene Tablets with very gratifying re-sults. Nervousness, overwork, and sleeplessness are my complaints." Mr. Joe N.
